

Join us for a day of celebration!

Sunday August 28 Judaism has a New Year for the Animals called Rosh Hashanah La'Behemot. This year it falls on August 28. In honor of this day, the farm is excited to announce that we're getting animals this fall. Our goats and chickens will do rotational grazing, which builds soil and promotes biodiversity. There will be opportunities to participate in regular animal chores beginning in a few months.

We need your help to get ready:

3:00-5:30pm Volunteer Day Come learn about the exciting plans for this fall as we work on the barn. All ages and abilities are welcome. To make this accessible to our community, tickets to the volunteer day are free, and any donations will support our animal care fund.

6:00-8:00pm Farm-to-Table Dinner Join us for a delicious farm-to-table fundraiser dinner. We'll be outdoors with a beautiful view of the mountains. The sliding scale for dinner is higher than most Yesod events because ticket sales will raise money necessary for our animal care fund. Your financial support makes our programs possible.

Can't wait to see you! Sign up to volunteer and buy a ticket to the dinner.

Image Description: The doors of Yesod's barn swing open to a green field.

Yesod Farm+Kitchen seeks collective liberation with the land through Jewish agriculture, mutual aid, and growing relationships across difference.